

Welcome Operator!

You are in charge of the spacecraft cabin's environmental and life support systems.

Your mission is to continuously monitor the automated atmosphere controls, track critical life-support parameters, and intervene manually the moment a system anomaly occurs.

The crew's safety depends entirely on your vigilance, situational awareness, and rapid response times during automated control failures.

When you are ready, close this message by clicking on the  button